

Panamanian Rum casks

10-year-old rum is sourced directly from one of the world's leading distilleries, Varela Hermanos in Central America and shipped directly to Scotland. They are stored at one of our secure bonded warehouses, meaning your investment has the same security as Scotch Whisky under HMRC guidelines.

When it comes to fine aged rums of South and Central America, Varela Hermanos and their flagship brand Ron Abuelo really sets the standard as the quest for perfection in spirits reaches a new high.

Cask details are as follows:

- 2012 Varela Hermanos Rum (10 year old)
- 200L First-Fill Ex-Bourbon Barrel
- 5-year insurance against fire, theft & accidental damage
- 5-year storage in a secure HMRC bonded warehouse
- Certificate showing your 100% ownership of each cask you purchase
- Approx. ABV: 63.5%
- £4,200

Rum is typically bottled at around 45.6% at various ages but we are advising clients to hold these casks for an additional 5 years, taking the spirit to its 15th birthday. At which point Panamanian rum typically retails at around £55 per bottle and each cask would yield approximately 360 bottles.

This is a unique opportunity to purchase what is set to be the next investment grade spirit trend. If demand keeps growing, we do believe that there will be a number of profitable exit strategies, including new rum brands that will be entering the market looking to purchase stock.

These casks will be sold on a first come, first-served basis and we must limit to two casks per client as our initial allocation is only 100
